Bachelor of Education (Secondary)

UNSW’s Bachelor of Education prepares graduates to pursue a career in secondary-school teaching, and is recognised as an initial teaching qualification in both government and non-government secondary schools throughout Australia and overseas. As it is only offered as a dual degree, graduates also benefit from further career opportunities in complementary professions.

The Bachelor of Education provides instruction and experience in the areas of educational theory, pedagogy, planning, diversity and management. A Bachelor of Education includes a major sequence in Education made up of core courses, electives and professional-experience placements.
