Degrees in the Arts and Social Sciences at UNSW are designed for the intellectually adventurous, boldly creative and socially engaged. Our students benefit from being part of a vibrant community buzzing with ideas and opportunities.

Discover ways of thinking about the world, enjoy the new experiences uni has to offer, and prepare yourself for an exciting future.

THE UNSW ADVANTAGE

- UNSW ranked 85th in the 2012 Times Higher Education World University Rankings, including 33rd globally for Social Sciences – this puts UNSW in the top 5 Australian institutions. We also ranked 52nd in the 2012 QS World University Rankings, including top 50 for Social Sciences and Education.
- UNSW showed again how sought after our graduates are, by scoring the maximum five-star rating for nine key performance indicators in the 2013 Good Universities Guide. For graduate employment – getting a job, starting salaries and positive graduate outcomes – UNSW rated in the top group for all three measures.
- The Australian Graduate Survey 2011 also shows UNSW graduates in high demand from employers, ranking us in the top 5% for median starting salaries.
INTELLECTUALLY ADVENTUROUS, BOLDLY CREATIVE, SOCIALLY ENGAGED.

WE ARE, ARE YOU?

TO STUDY, OR NOT TO STUDY?

Choosing a degree in Arts, Humanities or Social Sciences is not for the faint of heart. You need to be interested in thinking critically about the nature of change, its context, origins and future, and the part you wish to play in it. You need to enjoy communicating through different mediums, influencing diverse audiences, thinking analytically and creatively, and translating the outcomes into real world contexts.
THE STUDENT EXPERIENCE

By Andrew Blockie, 4th year student - Bachelor of International Studies (Asian Studies)/Bachelor of Law

What’s it like to study Arts and Social Sciences at UNSW?

Taking an Arts-related degree means defining your own path; whether it’s the structured courses of International Studies, Social Work and Social Research and Policy, or a flexible Arts degree, you choose where you want to be on the other side. For some, that’s frightening; for others, a security blanket, but it should really be liberating, and UNSW’s array of extracurricular activities enhances that.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

The university’s mission to have every conceivable interest covered, no matter how bizarre or esoteric, is embodied in the well over 100 clubs and societies on campus. Those with an eye turned to the world can find their niche in the United Nations society, where they can participate in model UNs and gain experience for a future globe-trotting career. If you want to cut loose, I Heart UNSW and the Culture Club provide events and activities. Most of the world’s cultural groups have an equivalent society, so whether you’re interested in a country or looking to hone those language skills you’re covered.

And these are just a few examples. There are events all through the year put on by clubs and societies; O-Week is the time to decide which is for you, as that’s the recruitment drive, but watch out not to join too many or you’ll be tied up before semester even begins!
University is social central, and Arts and Social Sciences students are known to be partial to a good time. UNSW has two bars; the Roundhouse is your fair-weather friend, the hub of UNSW and where all its main events go down: start of session parties, Foundation Day, Oktoberfest, et al. The White House drips with its own chic; it’s a cosy place to spend lunch or an afternoon.

University parties come around every few weeks and clubs put them on more often … If you’ve got a really bad memory as to what’s on, the campus magazines, Blitz and Tharunka, provide a pretty handy guide as well as being made up entirely of students’ writing.

It’s easy to feel overawed among the uni student horde, but don’t despair: there’s a great support network in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences to forge those connections and make great friends. Sign up in the first weeks of semester for peer mentoring; under the watchful eye of a student mentor, you’ll find your feet in no time. And once you do, don’t drop off the face of the Earth: if there’s one thing to remember as an Arts and Social Sciences student, it’s to get involved.
CREATIVE PRACTICE LAB

Crossing art forms: Supporting innovation And experimentation.

The Creative Practice Lab (CPL) supports creative practice, across a range of disciplines. We are like a medium sized arts organisation in the University, programming and producing a range of inspiring events during the year.

The School of the Arts and Media (SAM) has excellent production resources and the CPL offers expert support. Staff are experienced industry professionals, digital experts, technical magicians, filmmakers, producers, sound makers and production designers.

sam.arts.unsw.edu.au/cpl

It has been a humbling experience and we are sure our audience will be confronted and inspired by it.”

The School has purpose-built performance and exhibition spaces and there are rehearsal spaces, recording facilities, music labs, dance studios, media labs and resources for film and media production.

We look forward to your ideas, passion and curiosity whether you are directing, rehearsing, performing, designing or just watching and listening.
In the Theatre and Performance Studies course Staging the Text students work intensively with a professional director and production staff from the CPL. The result is a theatre production based on a performance text and presented to the public. Rather than attending weekly lectures students have a one month intense rehearsal schedule.

Staging the Text

In 2012, students worked with Kevin Jackson to present The Other Shore by Gao Xingjian. The students felt “It has been a humbling experience and we are sure our audience will be confronted and inspired by it.”
In the Arts and Social Sciences we are always looking for new global opportunities for our students. As one of Australia’s most international universities we understand that overseas study is a unique way for students to experience new cultures, build new skills and networks, and form lasting friendships. International experience also provides students with an edge in the competitive job market.

UNSW manages a large and active exchange program with options in over 200 different universities and colleges in 38 countries including the following prestigious partners:

- University of British Columbia, Vancouver
- Peking University, Beijing

Andrew’s Chinese Dream

In July 2012, UNSW International Studies/Law student Andrew Blackie headed to China to compete in the finals of the international language competition “Chinese Bridge”. The competition was broadcast on Chinese TV to an audience of 20 million.

Andrew, who first took up the language as part of his International Studies degree, believes that learning Mandarin is particularly important for Australians. “It equips you to engage better with our region and with a country that is already so vital to our interests,” he said. “On a personal level, learning about and becoming familiar with a culture so different from your own is immensely rewarding.” Andrew is now undertaking a 12 month Student Exchange at Peking University in Beijing.

Benefits

Live and study overseas at a partner university and receive credit towards your degree.

International Studies students complete a compulsory one year Overseas Study Program (OSP) at a partner university. The OSP provides an invaluable experience of other cultures, languages and peoples.

- UNSW Confucius Institute runs study tours to China
- Spend a month learning Spanish in Mexico or Spain
- Many more opportunities available across the globe!

Opportunities to work and volunteer overseas can be found through the UNSW Careers and Employment Office and also through various Clubs and Societies (ARC).

Bachelor of Social Work students have the opportunity to complete their field placements in India, Canada or Sweden.
GET PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE WHILE STUDYING YOUR DEGREE!

By Rubie Dickson
Freelance Writer and BMedia (Communication & Journalism) Graduate

What is a Professional Experience Opportunity?

It is the opportunity to gain real world experience within, or alongside, your degree. It gives you the chance to put the theory you’ve been learning into practice. In my third year of uni, I undertook a placement to evaluate my job options upon graduation and to make contacts with professionals in the Media industry.

Types of Professional Experience Opportunities:

1. Vocational Placements

Students doing a degree in Arts and Social Sciences have the option to do a vocational placement in their second or third year, and get degree credit points for it! The placement structure is flexible and means that you can tailor it to fit around your timetabled classes. Whilst placements are extremely competitive, our coordinator works closely with all students to find a role that is a perfect match for their professional or academic interests. Or if you’re sure where you want to go, like I was, you can hunt down your own placement. I chose to do mine at a major Australian public relations company, but other students have completed placements at:

- Amnesty International Australia
- Australian Broadcasting Authority
- Bell Shakespeare Company
- FBI Radio
- Health Department NSW
- Lowy Institute for International Policy
- NSW Commission for Children and Young People
- Australian Human Rights Commission
- SBS Radio and Television
- Oxfam Australia

2. Practice Based Learning

Practice based learning is the incorporation of practical work into your traditionally theory based subjects. Think of practice based learning as theorising about real events and providing solutions, conducting research studies, putting together professional portfolios or producing performance texts like plays, exhibitions or video projects. Renee Ettia, a Bachelor of Social Work/Bachelor of Social Science student says practice based learning “boosted my confidence dramatically and assured me that I had gained the skills needed to succeed in the workplace.”

A few examples of practice based learning courses are:

- Applied Criminology:
  Students build an electronic portfolio of knowledge around a topic, engaging with the work of real criminologists.

- Festivals and Exhibitions:
  A Media elective where students create and run their own festival/exhibition using different media types.

- Policy Analysis:
  Social Science students deal with real world policy problems through a series of case studies.

- Performance Production:
  Theatre and Performance students create a publicly presented production.

- Video Project:
  Film Studies students experience the video making process; creating a movie from script to final cut.
Practical experiences make you a competitive potential employee and gives you a chance to test out your chosen career path.

So what are you waiting for?

Field Placements

Two professionally accredited degrees in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences have compulsory field placements within them to make sure you have the practical skills you need to enter the profession straight after your degree.

▸ Bachelor of Social Work:
  This degree is designed to prepare you for the Social Work industry with an integrated field placement program. You must undertake 140 days placement in an agency either in Australia or overseas.

▸ Bachelor of Education:
  Education students gain classroom competence and confidence, by spending up to 80 days in a supervised teaching environment in at least two secondary schools during third and fourth year.

“Boosted my confidence dramatically and assured me that I had gained the skills needed to succeed in the workplace.”

Leon Huxtable
Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Education
3rd Year Student
Natasha Butorac, has been selected as the representative for Australia in the Higher Level Youth Summit on the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and will attend the World Model United Nations Conference in Melbourne in March 2013. It is the ultimate goal of the conference’s organising team to present the Melbourne resolutions to world leaders at the MDGs summit in New York in 2015.

The Bachelor of Social Research & Policy at UNSW is the degree to choose if you are socially engaged and want to contribute towards positive change locally and globally.

Jeremy Yeo
Bachelor of Social Research & Policy - 3rd Year Student
DEGREE DESCRIPTION

The Bachelor of Social Research and Policy is a three year degree in which you study a core program of social science, policy analysis and research methods. This is combined with your choice of major and an internship, providing real world experience to test out your research and policy skills in the area you’re interested in making a difference.

Dual degree options with this program include Law, Science, and Social Work.

HOMELESSNESS COSTING MILLIONS

SOCIAL RESEARCH AT WORK

A study led by UNSW’s Professor Eileen Baldry followed the lives of 11 people now aged between 23 and 55 and found that between them, they had cost State and Commonwealth Governments almost $22 million. Of the $22 million, $14 million was associated with ‘control’ agencies such as police, corrective services, juvenile justice, and courts and $8 million was for support costs including housing, welfare payments, health and disability services.

Professor Baldry said maintaining secure and supported housing is key to people staying out of the criminal justice system. “Early and well-timed interventions to establish and maintain secure housing and associated support services will reduce, if not obviate the need for the future years of criminal justice interventions.”

Careers

The UNSW Bachelor of Social Work degree qualifies graduates for membership of the Australian Association of Social Workers (AASW) which is required by many employers and is recognised internationally. Social Work graduates can be employed in a wide range of fields related to human wellbeing, including: human services, hospitals and community health, justice and corrections, community development, community legal services, adult education, international aid, and human resource management.

Our program has a formal agreement with TAFE NSW regarding the articulation of students from the Community Services. For more information visit: http://socialsciences.arts.unsw.edu.au

This is an AASW-accredited qualification. It is an entry qualification into the social work profession and has been determined to meet the Australian Social Work Education and Accreditation Standards (ASWEAS).
Our undergraduate degrees are recognised as an initial teaching qualification in both government and non-government Secondary Schools throughout Australia. The programs are also widely accepted as a teaching qualification internationally.
DEGREE DESCRIPTION

The Bachelor of Education is studied as part of a four year dual degree program for intending secondary school teachers. You will combine methods in one or two approved teaching disciplines, from the options below, together with both theoretical and practical aspects of education.

From the second year of the program you will develop skills in classroom competence and spend up to 80 days in supervised teaching in at least two different secondary school contexts.

PM VISITS UNSW EDUCATION STUDENTS

Prime Minister Julia Gillard and the Federal Minister for Education Peter Garrett visited UNSW in 2012 for a round table discussion with 20 education students. In a lively exchange the students told the PM they’d had both challenging and rewarding experiences communicating with high school students. The PM reminded them of the impact they can have through a teaching career; she laughed “Remember, any one of the children you teach has the potential to grow up to become Prime Minister!”

ALTERNATIVE ENTRY QUALIFICATION

Degree Transfer

Students can either apply for a transfer through UAC after completing a minimum of one year of university study (minimum of 0.75 full time equivalent in a degree). Assessment will be based on a combination of ATAR and university results.

Alternatively, students can apply via the UNSW Internal Program Transfer which assesses your application based on your performance in previous UNSW studies via your Weighted Average Mark (WAM).

UNSW Foundation Studies

UNSW Foundation Studies is designed specifically for students with an international education background. After the successful completion of the Foundation Studies program students have a guaranteed place via a provisional offer to an undergraduate degree at UNSW.

UPP 17-20

The UNSW Preparation Program (UPP 17-20) is an alternative entry pathway students aged 17-20. The preparation program is for entry to specific UNSW programs. It is designed for students with potential and an interest in tertiary education but who have suffered educational and/or social disadvantage and/or do not possess the required assumed knowledge to gain entry into their preferred program at UNSW.

HOW TO APPLY

Domestic Applicants
All domestic applicants must apply online through the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC) at www.uac.edu.au

International Applicants
International applicants must apply through the UAC if they are currently completing:
> an Australian Year 12 (either in Australia or offshore)
> NZ NCEA Level 3 qualification
> the International Baccalaureate

International applicants who have completed or are completing qualifications OTHER than those listed above apply for admission directly to UNSW.

Before lodging your application please visit our international student website at international.unsw.edu.au

FEES

Students enrolling at UNSW are generally liable for tuition fees or student contribution charges. Eligible students are able to pay or defer fees through HECS-HELP or FEE-HELP.
The University administers a number of scholarships and other forms of financial aid to support students.

For more details visit:
https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/fees/FeesMainPage.html

NOT SURE WHAT DEGREE TO CHOOSE?

UNSW provides flexible options for students who change their interests and aspirations. Options include transferring to a different degree or adding a second degree to complete a dual degree program.

“IT’S DEFINITELY THE Degree FOR ME!”
At UNSW, you can gain additional entrance points based on academic merit and other achievements.

HSC PLUS

HSC Plus awards up to five bonus points for students who perform well in subjects during their Australian Senior Secondary Certificate that are relevant to their preferred UNSW program.

How do I apply for HSC Plus?

No separate application is required, simply apply through UAC and if you have a preference for a program included in HSC Plus at the close of change of preferences AND your performance in a Year 12 course or courses is in the specified band, bonus points will be automatically added to your ATAR or equivalent to increase your selection rank for that preference.

HSC courses considered by Arts and Social Sciences may include:

- Languages (Beginners, Continuing, Background and Extension)
- Ancient History
- Modern History
- History Extension
- Economics
- English Advanced
- English Extension 1 and 2
- Music 2
- Music Extension

Visit: unsw.edu.au/hscplus for more details.

ELITE ATHLETES AND PERFORMERS (EAP)

The EAP Program awards a maximum of five bonus points to students who have excelled in areas of sport, academia, performance, leadership and music on a national or international level. Activities and/or commitments should have been undertaken in years 11 and 12.

- Elite athletes will have participated in sport at the level of national or international competition.
- Elite performers (including leaders) will have participated in significant national or international productions, competitions or events. An elite performer is a student who has demonstrated excellence through performing arts, scholastic achievement or leadership on a national or international level.

The Elite Athletes and Performers Program also provides eligible current students in all study programs with the necessary support to successfully integrate their academic life with their external pursuits in the form of enrolment flexibility, cross institutional study options and leave of absence for travel commitments.

Please visit: unsw.edu.au/eap to see if you are eligible and to find out how to apply!
COULD THIS BE YOUR NEW CRIB?

A huge redevelopment of The UNSW Kensington Colleges is underway with an anticipated opening date of January 2014. Basser, Philip Baxter and Goldstein College will be rebuilt and re-opened along with two new residential facilities introducing the modern conveniences of the 21st century while maintaining the history and traditions of UNSW College living. It’s an exciting time to live on campus with the 2010 opening of the UNSW Village and the UNSW Terraces opening in 2013.

WHAT’S NEXT?

Your university experience doesn’t have to end with an undergraduate degree. There are many opportunities available within Arts and Social Sciences for students who want to gain further specialisation, research or professional skills.

HONOURS

Honours study enables you to consolidate and integrate the results of an undergraduate degree and to demonstrate your ability to pursue major research projects in academic or professional settings.

What is Honours?

Honours is an extra year of study, usually following directly after an undergraduate degree, that combines aspects of undergraduate study with those of postgraduate research. It introduces advanced research training through the completion of a thesis or a creative or practice-based research project.

Why complete a Honours degree?

Honours provides the opportunity to engage in specialised and extended research, develop your research and analytical skills, and gain greater depth of knowledge in your field.

An Honours degree opens the way into postgraduate research programs (MA by Research and PhD). It is also helpful for career progression as it is well respected by future employers in both the public and private sector.

POSTGRADUATE COURSEWORK

Graduate study provides the opportunity to achieve personal and career development in terms of skills, intellectual abilities and international adaptability. Postgraduate Coursework programs allow you to build on your undergraduate degree by exploring specific areas in greater depth or adding new areas of knowledge.

Arts and Social Sciences options include:

- Applied Linguistics
- Criminal Justice and Criminology
- Development Studies
- Education – Professional Development
- International Law and International Relations
- International Relations
- Interpreting and Translation Studies
- Journalism and Communication
- Law, Media and Journalism
- Policy Studies
- Public Relations and Advertising
- Social Work – Professional Development
- Teaching – Secondary
- TESOL
