Summary of the Course

Subject Area: Australian Studies

This course immerses you in the history, politics and culture of Sydney and through them, introduces you to the interdisciplinary field of Australian Studies. You will explore the city through walking tours, touch artefacts from Sydney's famous Mitchell Library, and read and write about all aspects of the city, from Aboriginal fisherwomen to the stories of Sydney's old inner-city neighbourhoods. It's a journey through Australia's largest city, exploring its extraordinary urban transformation from a tiny penal outpost to a global city of international renown in only 200 years. In learning about Sydney, you will learn about urban development worldwide, the DNA of modern cities, and what makes them tick.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Critically assess various disciplinary approaches to the study of Sydney and the ways they help us to interpret its history, society and culture.
2. Use a range of sources to analyse Sydney's history, society and culture.
3. Construct a coherent and well-researched argument about some aspect of Sydney's history, society and culture.

Teaching Strategies

This class will be taught through a combination of excursions, lectures, tutorials and online workshops. A workbook of multiple choice and short answer questions aids tutorial preparation and tests content, while the major project engages students in in-depth research of a major Sydney landmark

Assessment

In this class, we prefer the Oxford/ Chicago referencing system (i.e., footes and bibliography).

<https://student.unsw.edu.au/footnote-bibliography-or-oxford-referencing-system>

However, we also accept 'in-text' referencing if it is a system that includes page number references (e.g., Harvard referencing):

<https://student.unsw.edu.au/harvard-referencing>

Please avoid the APA referencing system for this unit.

Please see Moodle for further information.

Assessment 3: Major Project

Start date:

Length: 2500

Details: A 2,500-word report on the role in history, landscape and politics of a public site in Sydney (chosen from a provided list). Individual feedback by rubric, written comment plus numerical grade.

Additional details:

You will be required to research and write a project on an important place, site or neighbourhood in Sydney. This is the major piece of work for this course, and where you can demonstrate your research, analytical, theoretical and interpretive skills.

You must see the place you are writing about, so your research must include at least one visit to, or drive along, your site(s) or parts thereof.

Your project should (not necessarily in this order)

- Describe the site
- Outline the history of the site, set within wider historical contexts and themes
- explore what the site tells us about the period in which it was built or created, and what it tells us about the history of the city overall. This component allows you to develop critical and analytical questions about your site
- Describe and analyse how the site is used and interpreted now
- include a discussion/critique how the history of the place has been researched and written (or recorded in other ways eg through photographs). If there is little or no secondary research/writing, say why this is so.

Your project will look a bit different from a standard university essay – you can devise your own structure, and the use of illustrations (maps, paintings and photographs) is encouraged.

However, the work also has to be scholarly, so apply the same critical thinking to your research, footnote your work as you would for any other essay, and include a bibliography, properly set out. The available material for sites will vary, but bibliographies should contain a minimum of eight substantial references.

The use of some primary sources is encouraged. We will explore their use in the Project Workshop and on our visit to the Mitchell Library.

Projects should be of 2500 words. Word limits on essays will be strictly enforced, give or take 150 words. Inappropriate length will be taken

Attendance Requirements

Students are strongly encouraged to attend all classes and review lecture recordings.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another's ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another's ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person's individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person's academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person's work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (<http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/>). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time

- understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
- be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
- be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
- locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
