Summary of the Course

This course will give you an introduction to the study of twentieth-century international history and diplomacy. Through weekly lectures, guided tutorials and readings, you will examine the major developments, events and crises that have shaped world politics from 1900 to the present, including the decline of European power in international relations, the rise of two world superpowers (the US and USSR), the emergence of postcolonial states in Asia and Africa and the impact of three major conflicts (First, Second and Cold War) on the international system. In this context, you will also be encouraged to explore how current world events have roots in earlier decisions, policies and processes, and to consider the lessons that may be learned from the achievements and tragedies of the twentieth century.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Demonstrate a critical understanding of the historical evolution of twentieth-century world politics and diplomacy
2. Exercise critical judgment in identifying significant events and actors in world politics and their impact on political systems, and provide a coherent account of key ideas and processes that have shaped world politics since the start of the twentieth century
3. Apply effective independent research skills, critical reasoning and communication skills

Teaching Strategies

The course is taught through a two-hour lecture and a one-hour tutorial. The aim of the lectures and tutorials is to engage students actively in the learning process by setting interesting essay and tutorial questions. All students are given the opportunity in tutorials to lead a tutorial discussion and to explore with the lecturer and with fellow students their understanding of key historical events, developments, ideas and processes that have shaped world politics since the start of the twentieth century.
Assessment

A significant aspect of ARTS2817 is the examination in depth of a case study based on a real-world diplomatic crisis. The 2020 case study ("Britain and Nazi Germany’s Reoccupation of the Rhineland: British Policy Options and Responses"), has been selected for its politico-diplomatic relevance and its enduring value as a test case for crisis diplomacy (and for the kind of challenges that world leaders face when dealing with an aggressive and revisionist power). Its key aim is to engage you with the complex dynamics of a major international crisis and to help you better appreciate the challenge of formulating foreign policy and carrying out diplomacy in an unstable world. To achieve this goal, ARTS2817 assessment mix relies significantly on the “policy review” as a valuable tool to foster independent research, critical thinking, effective communication, and problem-solving. With this in mind, the course convenor has also built a good part of the course content around the above case study (lectures 3 and 4 deal specifically with Western responses to the rising threat posed by Nazi Germany while the in-class simulation in week 10 will allow you to debate your policy recommendations in the context of a hypothetical British Cabinet meeting). The course convenor has done so not only to facilitate your task of dealing with a very stimulating diplomatic problem, but also to ensure that you fully enjoy (and benefit from) this learning experience.

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Presentation

Start date: Not Applicable

Details:

You are required to make an oral in-class presentation of no more than six minutes. You will receive written feedback and a marked rubric within ten working days of submission. The rubric will be available at the start of the term to allow you to work towards clearly communicated standards.

Additional details:
You will have to choose a weekly discussion topic (i.e. if you have chosen to do your presentation, let’s say, in week 5, your presentation will have to address the discussion topic scheduled for that week). In doing so, you will also have to make a case in favour or against the statement chosen as a weekly discussion topic (i.e. Discussion topic: At the Paris Conference, the governments of the winning powers made so many blunders that securing enduring peace and stability became practically impossible. You will have to argue the case in favour [I agree and I explain why] or the case against [I don't agree and I explain why]). Marks will be awarded in terms of the oral presentation’s overall quality (e.g. clarity of spoken delivery and ability to present a clear case; in addition, the presentation has to have a clear structure with an introduction, a main body in which you develop your argument, and a conclusion). Failure to complete this task will result in a 0 grade for this assignment (and this assignment only). Once you have chosen your presentation topic, make sure that you submit your video-recorded presentation via VoiceThread in Moodle (VoiceThread is an interactive collaboration and sharing tool that allows students to record and share their presentations online in Moodle). My strong preference is for video-recorded (rather than audio-recorded) presentations. Please also make sure that your video-recorded presentation is submitted in a timely fashion and by this I mean at least 24 hours before the tutorial class associated with the topic of your presentation (since all our tutorial classes this term take place on Thursday afternoons, I expect all students to submit their presentations by Wednesday afternoon on the week of their presentation). This arrangement will give me and the rest of the class enough time to watch your presentation before we all come to class. Finally, in preparing your presentation, you are not only expected to read beyond the “essential weekly readings”, but also to email me the list of your references the day before your presentation. Failure to do so will result in a lower mark as your tutor needs to be able to assess the number and quality of your sources.

Turnitin setting: This is not a Turnitin assignment

Assessment 2: Policy Review

Start date: Not Applicable

Length: 2,000 words (footnotes/endnotes/in-text references excluded)

Details:

You are required to write a policy review. The review must be no more than 2,000 words in length (footnotes/endnotes excluded). You will receive written feedback and a marked rubric within ten working days of submission. The rubric will be available at the start of the term to allow you to work towards clearly communicated standards.

Additional details:

A policy review is a major piece of writing used by various government departments/ministries around the world to guide policy development. A policy review will analyse political, economic and/or strategic developments (depending on the issue at hand), compare policy options, and propose specific policy recommendations. This exercise is designed to test your understanding of real-world problems and your ability to produce sound policy analysis and policy judgements. In addition, it aims to make you think about key international issues and encourage you to appreciate some of the difficulties policymakers are faced with in crafting a coherent policy towards a country, region or a specific problem. In this exercise, you will assume the role of a government minister (you will be asked to choose your specific role from a pool of options at the start of the term; a list of roles—i.e. foreign minister, defence minister, treasurer and so on—will be circulated at the beginning of T3). You will write a policy review following the format provided by the course coordinator (also at the start of T3). The review must be based on substantial empirical evidence and demonstrate a coherent policy approach. It should canvass alternative policy options and provide sound reasons for the policy approach advocated. In 2019 ARTS2817 will focus on a major real-world crisis—the controversial reoccupation of the Rhineland by Adolf Hitler’s Nazi Germany in 1936. In a nutshell, on 7 March 1936 German troops marched into the Rhineland. This action was in clear contravention of the terms of the Treaty of Versailles which Germany had accepted in 1921. It was also Hitler’s first illegal act in international affairs since coming to power in 1933, and it threw Britain and France, Europe’s two major world powers, into significant confusion. Its historical significance lies in the fact that it provided the first most unambiguous indication that Hitler was intent on challenging the post-WWI international order. Its enduring policy relevance lies in the fact that the Rhineland crisis represents a powerful and compelling test-case for the type of problems and challenges faced by world leaders in dealing with aggressive and revisionist world powers. In this context, you will be encouraged to reflect on some of the timeless and classic questions in international diplomacy—i.e. can diplomacy work in dealing with aggressive powers? When is it wise, and indeed necessary, to resort to the use of force? In the context of this assignment, you will be required to "put yourself in the shoes" of a key British Cabinet minister of your choice and to advise your (British) prime minister on the best course to take in dealing with Nazi Germany. In other words, all policy reviews will address the following fundamental policy question (although you will address it from different "angles", depending on your chosen role): How should the British Government respond to Hitler’s actions? In any case, your course convenor will provide more detailed information on how to do the policy review in a separate information booklet ("Dealing with Aggressive Powers: The 1936 Rhineland Crisis and the German Challenge to World Order") circulated through Moodle at the start of the term.

The review will be assessed on the following criteria: 1) evidence of research, 2) coherence, accuracy and succinctness of written expression, 3) soundness of proposed recommendations. The review must be no more than 2,000 words in length (footnotes/endnotes, in-text references excluded). In drafting it, you must make sure that you have consulted a good range of academic books, chapters in edited books and scholarly journal articles. There is no hard and fast rule on many readings you are expected to do. For this assignment, the expectation is that you will have no less than 8 scholarly sources (i.e. books, book chapters and academic articles). Also, be aware that failure to provide footnotes/endnotes/in-text citations and bibliography will also lead to your review being failed. Although it is true that, in real life, foreign policy reviews do not have footnotes/endnotes/in-text citations, your policy review is still an academic assignment and, as such, it has to be appropriately referenced.

Please note that sloppy and inaccurate referencing will also be looked upon unfavourably and will result in significant point deductions. Please note that for attendance monitoring, the final assessment for this course is the policy review worth 55% of your overall grade for this course. This is the assessment item that will be graded 0 if you do not meet the attendance requirement for this course.

Please also note that your policy review will serve as your personal brief during the in-class simulation in week 10. This means that you will be asked to draw upon your policy review’s insights and recommendations to discuss Britain’s policy options in dealing with the threat posed by Nazi Germany (in other words, bring a paper copy of your policy review to the simulation so that you can provide the other participants with your assessment of the situation and your policy recommendations).

Turnitin setting: This assignment is submitted through Turnitin and students do not see Turnitin similarity reports.

Assessment 3: End of Semester test
Start date: Not Applicable

Length: 30 minutes

Details:

The end of semester test will assess your knowledge and understanding of the material covered in weeks 1-8. You will be required to complete a questionnaire of 30 questions. You will receive written feedback within 10 working days of submission.

Additional details:

Questions will either be in a multiple-choice format or in a true/false format. The course convenor will upload a mock test on Moodle after the start of T3.

Failure to complete this task will result in a 0 grade for this assignment (and this assignment only). Please be advised that this is NOT an open-book test and that any evidence of cheating will be punished. Please also make sure that you do not miss the test as it will not be repeated.

Turnitin setting: This is not a Turnitin assignment

LESSONS LEARNED

In this tutorial class, we will discuss the lessons learned from the simulation and the case study on which the simulation is based. In a way, this will be a debriefing session in which we reflect on the challenges faced by policymakers in times of acute crisis. No readings have been scheduled for this week, but be prepared to discuss your insights on the simulated Rhineland crisis of 1936.
Resources

Prescribed Resources

The prescribed text for this course is:

Henry Kissinger, Diplomacy (New York: Touchstone, 1994)

Kissinger's book can be purchased from the UNSW Bookshop on campus. In addition to the readings from this book, you will also be expected to do some extra weekly readings. These extra (mandatory) tutorial readings (which have been outlined earlier in this course outline) will be made available through Leganto (please log into Moodle first).

Recommended Resources

Some interesting and valuable optional readings are also available in Leganto.

Course Evaluation and Development

Student evaluative feedback is gathered periodically using, among other means, "My Experience". Informal feedback and class-generated feedback are also important. Student feedback is taken seriously, and continual improvements are made to the course based in part on such feedback.
Submission of Assessment Tasks

Turnitin Submission

If you encounter a problem when attempting to submit your assignment through Turnitin, please telephone External Support on 9385 3331 or email them on externalteltsupport@unsw.edu.au. Support hours are 8:00am – 10:00pm on weekdays and 9:00am – 5:00pm on weekends (365 days a year). If you are unable to submit your assignment due to a fault with Turnitin you may apply for an extension, but you must retain your ticket number from External Support (along with any other relevant documents) to include as evidence to support your extension application. If you email External Support you will automatically receive a ticket number, but if you telephone you will need to specifically ask for one. Turnitin also provides updates on their system status on Twitter.

Generally, assessment tasks must be submitted electronically via either Turnitin or a Moodle assignment. In instances where this is not possible, it will be stated on your course’s Moodle site with alternative submission details.

For information on how to submit assignments online via Moodle: https://student.unsw.edu.au/how-submit-assignment-moodle
Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
• understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
• be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
• be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
• locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
