SUMMARY OF COURSE

How do primary-aged students develop and learn? What, and who, informs their learning? What is the role of cognition, motivation, identity, language, gender, culture, and ability? Using educational psychology as a foundation, you will explore psychological and social perspectives on child development and learning during the primary years of schooling. In order to develop your understanding of young students and how they learn, this course will focus on integrating research findings, theoretical positions, and practical aspects of child development. Specifically, you will be challenged to consider critical developmental issues in relation to your within-school experiences. Completion of this course will enable you to link learning theories and educational practice as a basis for ongoing professional reflection and development of effective primary school pedagogy.

THE MAIN WAYS IN WHICH THE COURSE HAS CHANGED SINCE LAST TIME AS A RESULT OF STUDENT FEEDBACK:

Last year was the second offering of this course within the new Master of Teaching Primary Program. While a number of changes were made after the first year, additional changes have been made as a result of student feedback. In addition, this course has benefited from a range of improvements thanks to the support of the UNSW Digital Uplift team of educational developers.

- Course hurdle requirement: 4321 Lists. Students found it challenging to keep up with the required weekly online posts. This year, time will be allotted within each class to complete the weekly post. A minimum of 8 out of 10 posts will be required (to align with the 80% attendance policy)
- Program hurdle requirement: Microteaching. The feedback form has been simplified and is now aligned with the 'teacher performance assessment' rubric that students will be working towards during their program. There is also a new centralised location for all microteaching components.
- Assessment 1: Case Study Report. Additional scaffolding and an incremental approach to completing this assessment is being implemented this year in order to better support students.

4. RATIONALE FOR THE INCLUSION OF CONTENT AND TEACHING APPROACH

Primary-aged students bring with them a broad range of developmental considerations that impact learning. As a teacher, your own life experiences and perspectives on learning impact your interactions and teacher-student relationships. Understanding child development through psychological and social lenses as well as through the filter of your own background can help promote students' academic and non-academic successes. Given this awareness, it is critical that teachers draw upon a developmental framework. The content and teaching approach of this course will help you frame your own practice in a developmental way – one that can promote further focus, refinement, and reflection throughout your teaching career.

5. TEACHING STRATEGIES

You can expect a combination of lectures, group activities, and guest speakers to provide opportunities for critical study and reflection on research literature and related issues. The weekly face-to-face sessions will include explicit instruction and a range of interactive activities designed to help you clarify, apply, and explore key themes experienced in your INSTEP placements. Since research shows that learning is best activated by interaction (and not passive consumption), attendance and active participation in the sessions will provide the foundation for your own understanding and development in this course. Pre-session readings and/or activities will be assigned in order to enrich engagement with the course content. In addition, supplemental materials and discussion opportunities will be provided through the course Moodle page to help foster interest and support your learning.

HURDLE REQUIREMENTS

Course Hurdle Requirement: Weekly in-class activity (4321 Lists)

This hurdle requirement involves responding to readings and content discussed during our course. To satisfy this ongoing hurdle, please complete the following for at least 8 out of the 10 opportunities indicated in our course schedule. See Moodle for further details.

- A. Prepare your list during the last 15 minutes of each class. In response to the weekly readings, activities, and/or session, please prepare a list containing the following:
- 4 main points
 - 3 implications for teaching in your future classroom
 - 2 questions/ concerns/ criticisms/ responses
 - 1 response to another student's question or comment in class
- B. Upload your list before our next class (within one week). Locate the 4321 Forum on our Moodle course page and upload each list by the specified date (within one week).
- You must post at least 8 lists in order to meet this course hurdle requirement
 - One of your 8 lists must be in response to Week 1. This is the first 4321 of the course that will address the readings, activities, and/or session on the introduction to educational psychology and child development. This session takes place on 19 February so you will submit your 4321 by 5pm on the following Tuesday (25 February 2020).

Program Hurdle requirement: Microteaching

Microteaching is the planning, presentation and evaluation of a lesson over a shortened period of time (a 10-minute mini-lesson). It is a critical aspect of your program as it provides you with the opportunity to focus on how you impact student learning through your interactions while also demonstrating key competencies specific to English or Maths. The microteaching component of the course will not only allow for your demonstration but also provide the important opportunity to observe other student teachers and engage in peer review. To prepare for this assessment, additional details and examples will be presented in class. See attached feedback form and Moodle for further details. To meet this program hurdle requirement, you must complete the following four components (see attached feedback form for details):

1. Planning – Submit an English or Maths lesson plan that incorporates both literacy and numeracy strategies. You will use the lesson plan template (see Moodle)
2. Teaching – Teach your 10-minute lesson to a small group of your peers (upload a copy of your video-recorded lesson to Moodle)
3. Assessing – Provide feedback to at least two of your peers
4. Reflecting – Complete a self-assessment with critical reflection within 2 days of teaching your lesson.

Important dates:

- Submit your draft lesson plan by Monday 16 March
- Teach (and record) your 10-minute lesson by 8 April
- Upload your final lesson plan and video file by 10 April
- Submit your reflection (via online form) within 2 days post-lesson
- Submit peer feedback (via online form) for at least 2 peers (to be assigned)

Recommendations for success:

- Start planning now!
- Ask your English or Mathematics instructor for help
- Read widely on effective classroom strategies
- Practise aspects of your mini-lesson prior to teaching your lesson

ASSESSMENT TASKS

Assessment 1: Case Study Report

Your case study assessment task requires you to independently respond to four scenario-based learning activities (to be provided online weekly during Weeks 2, 3, 4, and 5). Your reflective response should be written in first person narrative and consist of four equal parts (~500 words for each scenario plus reference list). See Moodle for details.

When developing your response to each scenario, please address the following:

- The identification of possible developmental factor(s) and related process(s) likely to have contributed to the 'problem' described in the scenario
- Integrate related research and sources of information that support the developmental factors apparent in the case description and the subsequent course of action you outline
- Include a statement about how your beliefs, values, and/or prior experiences inform the course of action or approach to resolving the situation

Assessment 2: Assessment Portfolio

For this assessment task, you will compile an assessment portfolio through a number of steps.

Although this is your final assessment, please start this task early!

1. Choose a year or stage level and define according to at least one developmental theorist and research related to that particular developmental area (e.g., physical, cognitive, language, social, emotional, moral).
2. Gather and write descriptions of 5 assessments that could help provide you with developmental information on one student at the chosen year or stage level of development.
3. Choose 2 of these assessments to trial with one student.
4. After obtaining permission from the classroom teacher in your INSTEP placement, trial the chosen assessments with one student.
5. Write-up the results of your trial and overall reflections. Be sure to include a developmental description of the student before presenting your results. This should include an overall developmental description, with specific attention to the developmental focus you are testing.
6. Format your report (approximately 15 pages; double-spaced) according to the additional requirements and template available on our course Moodle page.

 Unsatisfactory

If you show evidence of working towards each of the four components, then you will have satisfied this program requirement. Any student whose first microteaching session is judged as unsatisfactory will be given a further (only one) opportunity to gain a satisfactory grade. If a student is assessed a second time as unsatisfactory in microteaching, they will not be permitted to undertake Professional Experience 1 until the key concerns have been resolved.

* Note: Criteria listed aligns with the UNSW Teacher Performance Assessment. For the purposes of this microteaching hurdle requirement, only some of the criteria (bold) is expected to be addressed.
